C.I.A. Calls Off Visit to Columbia

The Central Intelligence Agency canceled a recruiting drive at Columbia University yesterday because of the threat of a student demonstration.

Thirteen interviews had been scheduled by Barbara Sude, manager of the C.I.A.'s Foreign Press Monitoring Services.

"Since there was going to be a demonstration, or the likelihood of a demonstration, we decided not to send her," said Dale Peterson, a spokesman for the C.I.A. in Arlington, Va.

About 20 students carried on with their noontime demonstration anyway. Two groups, the People's Intelligence Agency and the Coalition For Radical Change, passed petitions, carried placards and chanted against the agency.
